

new jersey marathon

marathoner06 739 posts since

Oct 24, 2007

anyone living in or around NJ or those that want to travel- registration has opened for the nj marathon and long branch half marathon held the first weekend in may. This is a very well run event and lots of extras for runners.I just entered the half-

Courir26 1,966 posts since

Feb 4, 2008 1. Re: new jersey marathon Aug 3, 2008 5:29 PM

Ahh, I was hoping/dreaming they would move it back to the last weekend in April! Pittsburgh Marathon is the same day (as is the Broad St Run).

thefirecat 2,399 posts since

Dec 14, 2007 2. Re: new jersey marathon Aug 3, 2008 6:55 PM

Yeah, I'm contemplating Pittsburgh, myself....if I stay healthy.

NJ's on the boardwalk isn't it? I can't even imagine. I've NEVER been on the boardwalk without a good stiff crosswind.

marathoner06 739 posts since

Oct 24, 2007 3. Re: new jersey marathon Aug 4, 2008 3:41 AM

 in response to: thefirecat

Only some of it is on the boardwalk. I loved it this last year and I have decided it is so close Im going to make it a regular. Very cost effective and gets my training off to a good start. I cant afford to keep travelling every time I want to run a ,marathon.

thefirecat 2,399 posts since

Dec 14, 2007 4. Re: new jersey marathon Aug 4, 2008 7:25 AM in response to: marathoner06 marathoner06 wrote:

new jersey marathon

Only some of it is on the boardwalk. I loved it this last year and I have decided it is so close Im going to make it a regular. Very cost effective and gets my training off to a good start. I cant afford to keep travelling every time I want to run a ,marathon.

Oh, excellent. I just have an inlander's aversion to the Jersey Shore. As I'm sure you well know. To me, the only water that should touch my state is the Delaware. 😊 Can't help it, I'm a river rat.

lenzlaw 7,024 posts since

Jan 18, 2008 5. Re: new jersey marathon Aug 4, 2008 7:33 AM

👤 in response to: thefirecat

I thought about doing the Ocean Drive Marathon last year, sort of as a training run for Nashville. I might do this one if I hadn't already committed to Pittsburgh. And all these things conflict with Broad Street, one of my favorites.