

Hotels

Native Floridian 1 posts since

May 1, 2008

Can anyone recommend any hotels that are ok to stay in for the MCM? Need something within walking distance to the metro!:D

cplmtz0121 2,449 posts since

Nov 1, 2007 1. Re: Hotels Oct 20, 2008 6:46 AM

Probably nothing this late in the game. But it's DC, we stayed all the way in Springfield and had no problem at all getting around using public transportation.

lenzlaw 7,025 posts since

Jan 18, 2008 2. Re: Hotels Oct 20, 2008 7:20 AM

 in response to: cplmtz0121

Can't offer more than that. I can't imagine you'd find anything close to the start / finish. Just make sure the hotel really is close to the Metro. A lot of them say they are but it turns out to be a mile away. Many also have shuttles to and from Metro but they may not start early enough for the marathon.

wonwood 41 posts since

Aug 26, 2008 3. Re: Hotels Oct 20, 2008 7:35 AM

I am staying at the Marriott Dunn Loring. As of last week they still had rooms. I believe it is a little further from the start then some of the other hotels but it was $119 a night and it was directly across the street from a Metro station. I got scared by some of the messages of people waiting hours trying to get back to Crystal City so I choose to go the other direction and a little further out.

Hotels

Wood

jthornbuckle 7 posts since

Nov 4, 2007 4. Re: Hotels Oct 20, 2008 8:36 AM

 in response to: wonwood

Here is a link to the hotel.

<http://www.ichotelsgroup.com/h/d/hi/1/en/hotel/axehd?rpb=hotel&crUrl=/h/d/hi/1/en/availsearch&ias=y>

I had purchased a room for myself and 1 for my girlfriend who will no longer be able to make the trip. When you book with priceline the room is non refundable therefore I am stuck with them. It looks like the hotel is charging $229 per night for the rooms I paid $85 per night and would just like to get my money back...so that would be $170 to you. I can accept pay pal an just have them move the room reservation to your name if that works for you.

mirriam71 48 posts since

Apr 14, 2008 5. Re: Hotels Oct 20, 2008 8:37 AM

 in response to: wonwood

I would also suggest the Marriot at the Dunn Loring metro. I live in Dunn Loring so I may just stay home - why wouldn't I? Well, I've got 14 month old twin boys who think its great fun to get up in the middle of the night the night before a long training run, so I don't know why the night before the actual marathon would be any different!

Hotels

The hotel is a 30 second walk from the metro, and its the Orange line which will take you to Rosslyn. You then get on the blue line to the Pentagon. It's about a 30 minute trip, but the metro opens at 5 am. http://www.wmata.com/tripplanner_d/tripplanner.cfm.

Miriam