

On any hike, a new application can tell...

omit 3 posts since

Jun 18, 2009

and can accurately tell you when there may be a greater than 90% chance of a thunderstorm....2 days before you head out. Would this ne valuable to you...if so why?

Lance1ab 1 posts since

Jun 19, 2009 1. Re: On any hike, a new application can tell you temperature at intervals on the hike Jun 19, 2009 3:13 PM

Of very little value. It's called local weather forecast. Weather forecasts are 60% +- accurate greater than one day out in Colorado so it really does not good to try to schedule outdoor activities, work crews etc around that low an accuracy.

I would like to have a warning system device that can reach me any where and let me know if serious stuff is coming in. I am constantly not seeing the dark cloud and/or white out hidden behind the mt top.